.....

I started in graffiti and street art in the year 2000 as a self-taught artist, finding in walls a raw and free form of expression.

In 2003, I moved to Madrid—a city that transformed my visual language.

Over time, letters gave way to figurative shapes, abstract elements, and bold colors.

My work explores fragmentation, rhythm, and ephemerality, blending the spontaneity of graffiti with a deeper artistic search.

I work with spray paint, rollers, and brushes on walls, canvases, and ephemeral spaces.

I'm inspired by nature, surrealism, and the fleeting passage of time.

I have participated in mural festivals, group exhibitions, and collaborative projects.
